Training for employability!

German industry enjoys an excellent reputation with its professional education based on the dual system. Long-standing experience in the field of vocational education which is directly linked to market demands, a strong practical component and the integration of professional, social, and methodical competencies characterise the kind of know-how German partners can provide.

Curriculum design according to industrial standards, the training of trainers and the integration of skills development into the working process are among the major strengths of German training programmes, which are on a high technical and didactic level. “Training – Made in Germany” ranges from consulting services and standard education courses to tailor-made in-house trainings.

Enhance your competitive edge!

In many parts of the world, sectors with a high growth potential have to cope with increasing mismatches between the skills that employers need and the skills that employees have.

Improving the supply and relevance of skills is a major element in enhancing national competitiveness. It also ensures that every individual remains employable and therefore plays an important role in guaranteeing the social stability of a country.

In order to achieve the modernisation of professional education, many nations are oriented towards adopting international experience and models. Strategic alliances and mutually beneficial partnerships are seen as vital for success.

For more information order or download our free brochures Developing Skills for Employability with German Partners. They each present eight success stories of partnerships and joint ventures between international companies and German training organisations.

Benefit from our business relations!

Via the Internet we increase awareness of German competence in the education sector, gather and provide information as well as foster communication. Content is offered in Arabic, Chinese, English, French, German, Russian and Spanish.

The iMOVE website www.imove-germany.de features our unique provider database. It contains the profiles and services of more than 200 German training providers. You can select by topic, country and provider in seven languages. You can also contact providers directly online.

Benefit from our online B2B marketplace to communicate your specific requirements and search for a suitable partner. Our website also includes announcements and documentation relating to all iMOVE events.

Find competent partners!

Effective international cooperation is first and foremost based on trust. Getting to know one another personally is at the forefront of every partnership or joint effort. iMOVE's mission is to bring people together.

In order to facilitate personal contacts and business relations, we organise trade missions, B2B meetings and conferences. We also participate in trade fairs and exhibitions worldwide. Meetings are arranged with governmental authorities, training institutions and industry.

Our events are platforms for establishing a network of education providers, industrial firms and service companies interested in strengthening the education sector and mutual business relations.
